

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a user interface displayed on the user's terminal device, a newspaper page image is maintained as it is while only information that is necessary to a user can be read through. Only readable headline information from a newspaper page is displayed as electronic data just as it is laid out on the newspaper page, and article information that is linked to the headline information is displayed on a display device as readable display data at a time when the readable headline information is designated selectively.

10010726 120701